

Julia Shirar makes paintings of contemporary American society drawn from observation and memory: life, distinct from a photograph. Her subject is her most immediate environment. Julia's artwork has been included in shows at The Tate Modern in London, UK, The National Veteran's Art Museum in Chicago, IL, Gray Area Foundation for Art in San Francisco, CA and Rowan Morrison Gallery in Oakland, CA. She lives and works in Queens, NY.